MUSEUM

The true story of Florida's "Unconquered" Seminole Indians!

"Che-han-tamo!"

On behalf of the Seminole Tribe of Florida, I would like to invite you to the Ah-Tah-Thi-Ki Museum – the nation's largest display of the life and culture of the Florida Seminoles.

The Museum includes 5,000 square feet of exhibits on a cypress dome near the Florida Everglades. You'll see lifelike displays of how we lived in the 1800s, and rare artifacts from our past.

Part of the Seminole collection on loan from the Smithsonian is featured at the Ah-Tah-Thi-Ki Museum. This includes moccasins, leggings, turtle shell rattles, silverwork, beaded sashes, and medicine baskets. The Museum also has exhibits of its own holdings, including southeastern beaded shoulder bags and Seminole patchwork clothing.

The exhibit gallery also includes user-friendly computers where you can find more information on the Seminole Tribe's rich history and culture. In addition to the informative exhibits, the Museum features a Legends Theater that presents the traditional beliefs and legends of the Seminoles in a camp-like setting.

I hope you enjoy your visit to Ah-Tah-Thi-Ki Museum, truly...

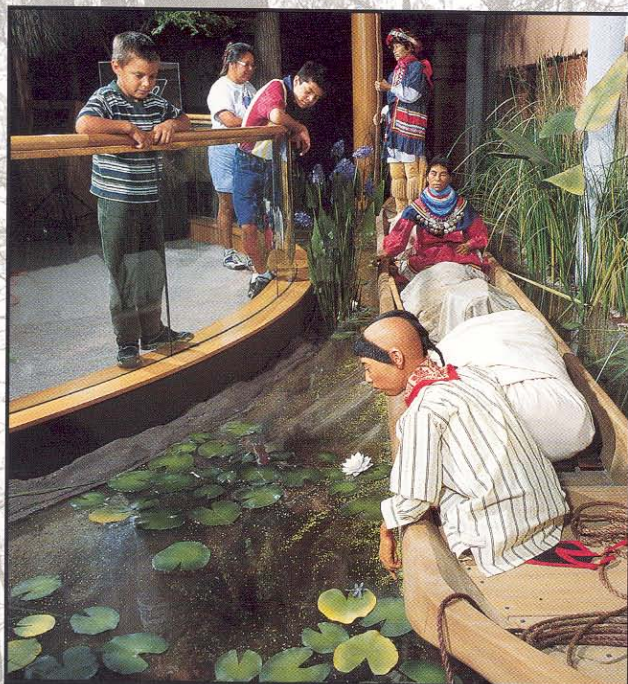

"a place to learn...a place to remember."
